

Don Williams has distilled years of research and museum experience into practical advice for anyone concerned with preserving a collection. Covering everything from baseball cards to panel paintings, the tips in this book will prove useful to everyone from the beginning collector to the connoisseur. Finally, someone has stated, in a highly readable and entertaining style, how to properly store, care for, and display artwork and other valuables.

Saving Stuff provides a wealth of invaluable advice to anyone who wishes to care, preserve and display personal collections and family treasures. Written for the non-specialist, this informative and well-organized guide includes practical suggestions for a wide range of objects from photographs, family papers, toys, household furnishings and textiles to sports and political memorabilia.

Betty C. Monkman
Curator (Retired)
The White House

As a Senior Conservator for the Smithsonian Museum, Don Williams is uniquely qualified to offer guidance in caring for virtually every type of material - natural or man-made, ancient or modern. As the table of contents quickly reveals, an astonishing range of items are covered in detail. With clear step-by-step instructions accompanied by engaging personal anecdotes from Don and co-author, Louisa Jaggar, Saving Stuff provides the “right stuff” for preserving the personal artifacts of our lives and makes a great read besides!
